5K-First Grade News

This week, Thursday, the kindergartners and first graders will read with their Reading Buddies one last time before the year is over. We enjoyed sharing our stories and doing small projects together during the school year. We will miss our Reading Buddies!

Friday we will head to the Shalom Wildlife Park. Please have your child(ren) dress according to the weather that day. Send your child's carseat or booster to school and leave it near the school entrance. We will be leaving at

For Science the kindergartners are learning about plants and animals. We are learning about different plants and plant parts. We have planted some grass seeds. This week we will discover plants that we can eat with some taste testing. We are still waiting for our caterpillars to make their cocoons and transformation into painted lady butterflies. Next week, the first graders will also join as we will be gathering our stuffy animals to create a classroom Zoo for people and students to come and visit. (Look for a separate note about that.)

Second-Third Grade News

It is a short week for us as we have our field trip on Friday. Because of this, we will not be having spelling this week. Instead of our normal reading and spelling, we will spend time reading fairy tales and starting to write our own.

We will be doing First and Second Grade Memory work on Thursday due to the field trip.. Information on carpooling and other reminders for Friday will be sent home separately.

Fourth Grade News

Lots of learning is still happening! Bible study continues with lessons about the work of the apostles in the early Christian church. Memory treasures for the week will be Hymn 510:1 and Acts 4:20. Math moves to geometry with understanding angles and how to measure them.

The research for the living wax museum person is moving from the research stage to the writing of the paper. Next week the students will be typing the paper and making a poster. Remember to invite family members to the museum on Tuesday, May 23, from 1:30-3:00 p.m.

The last field trip for this year is on Friday, May 19. The 4th graders will leave a bit earlier to head to Serenity Villa for a visit, and then hopefully add a stop on the way back to school. The permission form is in the take home folders.

Seventh-Eighth Grade News

Last week we ended art class with our final birch trees, summer ones. We only have a few more chapters of our book Old Yeller left and will read our summaries of each chapter aloud when we're done. We are doing more on Banzai, learning how to be safe online and smart with our money, as well as learning how to put data together on plots and graphs. In science, we are starting our last book on the environment, which we will create presentations for and teach to one another.

We continue to get excited for the end of school. In Catechism, we have started doing practice examinations, which the 8th graders are excited for. We also sent several students to the mock meet on Wednesday at KML, where they will be going this week for state qualifications.
