We congratulate all students for trying their best using the talents God has given them. Students will know the parts they were chosen for today. For the rest of the students--the third graders will be the in the Candy Man Chorus and some of them may also be squirrels. Fourth and fifth graders will be the Oompa Loompas. Thank you Kindergartners for beautifully singing Lamb of God last Wednesday at the 4:00 Lenten service.

This week Monday and Wednesday the kindergartners will have some visitors from Preschool join us for the day. We are excited to share what we do in Kindergarten with them!

Also, thank you, parents, for all the donations to our breakfast basket for the Silent Auction. It turned out really great!

First-Second Grade News

What a wonderful way to start the day...a sunny morning...bird's chirping...and the knowledge that it is a four day week. Since it is a shorter week, memory work will be due on Thursday and our spelling tests will be then as well. Our Bible lessons this week are about King Saul and how, sadly, he turned his back on God. In social studies we will talk about Neighborhood Helpers and in science, we will continue to study the respiratory system. In writing, we are drawing near the end of our poetry unit. Once we finish our poems, we are going to assemble them all into our own poetry collections.

Third-Fourth Grade News

Thank you, everyone, for your amazing generosity with the silent auction for the gym. Our planned three baskets turned into five. Thank you again! Bid high and bid often!!

This is a short, but busy week with no school on Friday and the 3rd quarter ending on Thursday Watch for those report cards next week! Plus, on Thursday, the students will get to see a performance by the Trinity Irish Dancers followed by a day with Jump Rope for Heart. Academically, the students will continue their study of King Saul and his interactions with David. Grammar continues with verb tenses. In math, the students will work on reciting the individual times tables as well as take a chapter test on Wednesday. Keep studying!!

Fifth Grade News

We have one week left of the third quarter. There is no school this Friday! With a shorter week, we will not have a spelling test this week. We are starting a new novel in reading. We will be having a grammar test on Tuesday. On Thursday, we will be watching the Irish dancers and have a special jump rope activity for Kids' Heart Challenge.

Time to get busy on the science fair projects! They are due next Tuesday. Students will need to do their experiment using the scientific method, display the information on a tri-fold board, and have a written report.

Thank you for all the generous donations to our classroom basket for the silent auction. Be sure to take some time to look at the many baskets that are in the hallways.

With the end of the quarter, please make sure you have updated the church attendance sheets. Thank you!

Sixth-Eighth Grade News
